Catching Fire is divided into three parts: Katniss and Peeta's mandatory Victory Tour through the districts, preparations for the 75th Annual Hunger Games, and a truncated version of the Games themselves. Slower paced than its predecessor, this sequel explores the nation of Panem: its power structure, rumors of a secret district, and a spreading rebellion, ignited by Katniss and Peeta's subversive victory.

Mags Flanagan was the female tribute from District 4 during the 75th Hunger Games, for which she volunteered for Annie Cresta. She was also the victor of the 11th Hunger Games. At the age of 16, Mags became the first victor of District 4. Her skill with fish hooks and other natural skills she likely acquired from living in District 4 probably played a role in her victory. She was the first ...

The Hunger Games: Catching Fire is more grim and heated than its predecessor, The Hunger Games. It's far more war than game, filled with desperate people doing desperate things in desperate times. Even if we never saw a drop of blood onscreen (and we do), the thematic elements alone demand that we approach with caution.
